DIRECTORS OF PUMPKIN SHOW THANK HERALD

Monday's 24-Page Edition Received Praises From Mogs Behind Big Event.

At the meeting of the Directors of the Pumpkin Show Society Monday evening, attention was called to the members of the Special Pumpkin Show Edition of The Herald on Monday by George M. Fitzpatrick. Mr. Fitzpatrick's experience with newspaper work, while with the Herald years ago, realized the vast amount of work necessary to get out an edition as this and as the edition covered the story of the Pumpkin Show in detail he felt that the Circleville Publishing Co. should be given credit for this splendid piece of work.

The text follows:
At the last meeting of the Board of Directors of the Circleville Pumpkin Show Society, it was unanimously agreed to express our hearty appreciation of the fine edition of your paper on Oct. 14, 1929. The graphic description of our annual Pumpkin Show from its swaddling clothes to its gigantic proportions of today, require some research into the archives of ancient history. You have spared no pains to give to your readers a very neat, yet true, elucidation of its growth. We feel sure the people of Circleville and Pickaway-co will cherish and hold in preservation this issue of your paper.

Especially will the Directors and all the chairmen of the different section of all departments house this way among their most valued mementoes to enlighten the future generations of the past doings of their predecessors in this great agricultural and home coming celebration. Long may the Pumpkin Show Society live and flourish and your valued enterprise grow and become as much is not a greater power in our community.
Again, Mr. Editor, we heartily thank you for this splendid edition.

CALL TO ARMS

(BY WINAFRED A. BROWN.)

Come to the Pumpkin Show tonight
For all the Beauties will be there;
Red apples, gourds and Hubbard squash—
It's like a County Fair—
The farmer brings his China pigs,
His Jersey heifer, too;
He brings along some rare old hops,
The kind that makes the brew.
His wife brings in some Leghorn hens,
A butter pat and cake;
For all the wives are interested
In what each other makes.
The farmer brings potatoes, yams,
Apples, plums, and pears,
Peaches, apricots and corn
And his best clothes he wears.
Our Johnny raised a huge pumpkin,
And Sally made a quilt,
And Granny thought she'd send some flowers
But she just knew they'd wilt.

Mother took a lot of pains
When she made jam and jelly;
She said, of course her chocolate cake
Would take the prize and sell.
Poor Sammy's crop of fine pop corn
Was covered with his coat;
He thought he'd bring that to the show;
'Twas in his Nanny goat!
Rabbits, dogs and kitty cats,
Turkeys, ducks and geese
Jammed up against an eating house
When some one calls, Police!
The girls bring in their fancy work;
The boys made queer bird nests;
The schools send in a huge display
Of all the hardest tests.
'Tis surely one fine gathering,
Our Famous Pumpkin Show,
So call up all your neighbors
And say, Come on, Let's Go!!!

Al Smith's Brown Fedora Discarded Also Big Cigars

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—(INS)—Former Governor "Al" Smith has discarded the famous brown derby as a political campaign habillament.

Also the cigar he used to wiggle aggressively between his teeth. Wearing a smart light tan fedora, "Al" made his first speech in the mayoralty campaign last night. He spoke in behalf of Mayor James J. Walker who is seeking reelection.

The shedding of the "iron hat" occasioned some comment by "Al's" old friends. But when he didn't light a single cigar during the whole evening, they were quite surprised.

Otherwise "Al" was his same old self. Humorous, sarcastic and a great "crowd pleaser." As in days of yore he "quoted the record."
The corner-stone of British naval policy is that the British navy must always be sufficient to meet the sea-power of any European combination. The British successfully carried out that principle in the rationing of capital ships at the Washington arms conference, and there is no expectation that they will sacrifice it in London when the effort is made to ration auxiliary ships of war.

Consequently the success of the January conference, in the larger sense, rests with France and Italy. A tri-party agreement between Great Britain, the United States and Japan, while satisfactory in some respects, would necessarily be elastic, stretching and contracting in accordance with French and Italian building.

There is real concern in Washington over the prospects of the French making any naval agreement entered into at London conditional upon the larger disarmament effort of the League of Nations. The French thesis is that reduction or restriction of navies is but one block in the disarmament pattern, and that it should be considered in conjunction with land and air armament.

The American attitude toward this thesis is that standing armies and air forces are questions primarily of European and not American concern. The American army is already on a police basis.

If the French adhere to their thesis at London and make any naval agreement conditional upon the larger disarmament objectives of the league, which most statesmen consider visionary at this time, it is more than probable that a tri-party agreement will emerge from the forthcoming gathering instead of a lasting five-power treaty.

ESCAPE INJURY IN AUTO CRASH

Fred Thompson and John Goodchild escaped injury Wednesday when their cars collided at the corner of Watt and Washington-sts. Thompson's Ford which was driving south on Washington-st was turned completely over in the street. The Chevrolet of Goodchild, was only slightly damaged, and was driven away from the scene of the accident.

WORLD POWERS ACCEPT INVITE TO NAVY MEET

Hoover-MacDonald Conference Seen To Have Borne Fruit For Ship Cut.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—All of the powers have now signified their acceptance of the invitations to the London naval conference. Official advices to this effect have reached Washington and assure at least a start on the problem which President Hoover and Premier Ramsay MacDonald have set for themselves—the reduction of the world's navies.

There is gratification in Washington over the fact that all of the powers addressed have promptly signified their willingness to participate in the conference. But officials here are holding their enthusiasm in check until it can be seen just what conditions are hedged about France's acceptance.

The American note of acceptance, sent last week, imposed no conditions. Japan's acceptance was likewise unconditional. Conflicting reports have reached here as to whether Italy's acceptance is without reservations. As for France, there is little doubt here that her note of acceptance will lay down certain restrictions which may define the limits to which the conference may go.

More and more, it is being recognized here that the fate of the parley lies in French hands. If the French are willing to "go along" on the general principles already agreed upon between President Hoover and Premier MacDonald the conference can be expected to encounter fairly smooth sailing. If not, there will be storms in London in January.

The most that can be expected from the London meeting is a five-power naval agreement that will reduce existing naval establishments and place all future building on a fixed basis. The least that can be expected is a tri-party agreement between Great Britain, the United States and Japan, which will be of a temporary nature and endure only so long as France and Italy do not embark upon major building programs.

The corner-stone of British naval policy is that the British navy must always be sufficient to meet the sea-power of any European combination. The British successfully carried out that principle in the rationing of capital ships at the Washington arms conference, and there is no expectation that they will sacrifice it in London when the effort is made to ration auxiliary ships of war.

Consequently the success of the January conference, in the larger sense, rests with France and Italy. A tri-party agreement between Great Britain, the United States and Japan, while satisfactory in some respects, would necessarily be elastic, stretching and contracting in accordance with French and Italian building.

FLIERS PUT ON STUNTS TODAY

Mathewson 'Aviators' Furnish Thrills of Opening of Pumpkin Show.

Starting at 1 p. m. Wednesday the Mathewson fliers hailing from Detroit will furnish Circleville's Pumpkin Show goes with a stunt an hour during the four days of the show.
Miss Rose Devilo, a daredevil if there ever was one, at one o'clock this afternoon rode the wings of the plane and after a little maneuvering hung from the bottom of the plane with one arm, then with one leg, and finally gave the home folks a real thrill when she suspended herself from the bottom of the ship with her teeth.

For the promotion of aviation this coupon entitles bearer to airplane ride with the Mathewson Flyers for a "penny a pound" what you weigh is what you pay.
The fliers with this group are government licensed.
Ride with them through the courtesy of The Herald.

Ace Rinehart will do several parachute jumps each day. One of the features of the show of Truman Miller, a veteran aviator with over 200 hours in the air. Truman for 70 of these hours was a mail pilot over the extremely difficult route Cheyenne, Wyo., to Rawlins, Wyo., over the mountains. Miller says you keep climbing and climbing and sometimes when you think you are over the mountains you are just beginning to start up hill.

The fliers furnish thrill after thrill but their main object is to show Pickaway-co people that flying is safe.

Passengers are being taken up in the plane for "a penny a pound" provided they have the coupon from the Herald which is being run daily. Otherwise the cost is two and one-half cent a pound.

The fliers are located in a field just out of town on route 188.

15 Locomotives Starting With 1680 Model on Exhibit At Pumpkin Show

Ernest Warther Has Refused Offers To Sell For $50,000—Works at Home.

Ernest Warther, Dover, O., who occupies a space for the Pumpkin show directly in front of The Herald office, has one of the most unique displays ever shown at a fair of any kind.

Warther has with a penknife carved 15 locomotives starting with the first steam engine in 1680 and continuing until the Pacific type locomotive of 1922. The models are made from ivory, ebony, black walnut, pearl and bone, and are mechanically perfect. Some idea of the intricacy involved in the work may be secured by the bell-cords on the models. These are not bent, as ivory cannot be bent, but are cut to the curve after using a shellac covered thread as a template.

The ivory used in these models came from elephant and walrus tusks and also billiard balls. The frames of the models are made of apple woods inlaid with mother of pearl. The bolts and rivets are made of bone, and there is real ebony in the wheels, cylinders and tender frames.

The larger of the engines has 7,597 pieces including the base. The collection which has conservatively been valued at $150,000 and which has been displayed throughout the country includes the George Stephenson locomotive which pulled the first passenger train in the world; the DeWitt Clinton locomotive, the first on the New York Central and the Empire State Express No. 999 which pulled the world's fastest sums of money have been spent pro and con in the lobby warfare over sugar duties, the senate committee summoned spokesmen for the United States Beet Sugar company and a representative of American growers, was to be the opening witness. He will be followed by H. C. Lakin, president of the Cuba Company, who can speak for the Cuban growers. These two groups have battled for many years over sugar tariffs—a warfare that has been waged relentlessly during consideration of the pending tariff bill.

The American growers won in the house, where a basic Cuban rate of $2.40 per hundred pounds was approved. Then the senate finance committee reduced this rate to $2.20 per hundred pounds. The Cuban growers meanwhile have fought for retention of the existing $1.75 rate, which may yet be approved by the senate. Both sides incidentally flooded congress with propaganda favoring their particular causes.

"We wish to find out how much money was raised for this propaganda and lobbying activity," observed Senator Walsh (D) of Montana, member of the committee. "We want to know where it came from and how it was spent. That large sum was spent is indicated by the amount of publicity given to this subject."

The British successfully carried out that principle in the rationing of capital ships at the Washington arms conference, and there is no expectation that they will sacrifice it in London when the effort is made to ration auxiliary ships of war.

Consequently the success of the January conference, in the larger sense, rests with France and Italy. A tri-party agreement between Great Britain, the United States and Japan, while satisfactory in some respects, would necessarily be elastic, stretching and contracting in accordance with French and Italian building.

There is real concern in Washington over the prospects of the French making any naval agreement entered into at London conditional upon the larger disarmament efforts of the League of Nations. The French thesis is that reduction or restriction of navies is but one block in the disarmament pattern, and that it should be considered in conjunction with land and air armament.

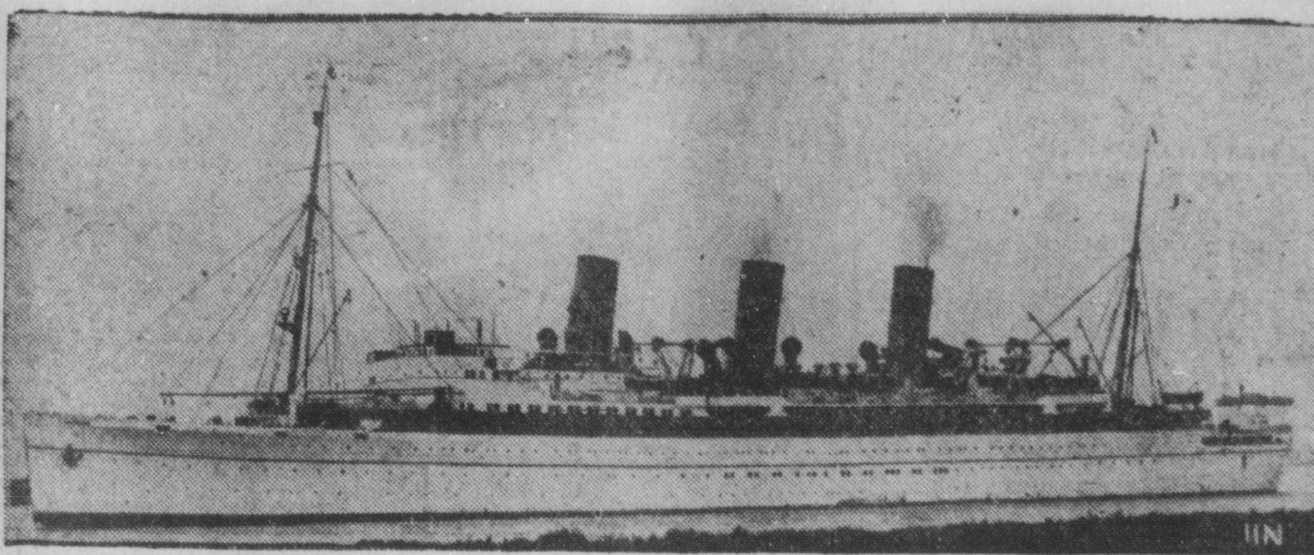

The American attitude toward this thesis is that standing armies and air forces are questions primarily of European and not American concern. The American army is already on a police basis.

If the French adhere to their thesis at London and make any naval agreement conditional upon the larger disarmament objectives of the league, which most statesmen consider visionary at this time, it is more than probable that a tri-party agreement will emerge from the forthcoming gathering instead of a lasting five-power treaty.

FLIERS PUT ON STUNTS TODAY

Mathewson Aviators Furnish Thrills of Opening of Pumpkin Show.

Starting at 1 p. m. Wednesday the Mathewson fliers hailing from Detroit will furnish Circleville's Pumpkin Show goers with a stunt an hour during the four days of the show.

Miss Rose Devilo, a daredevil if there ever was one, at one o'clock this afternoon rode the wings of the plane and after a little maneuvering hung from the bottom of the plane with one arm, then with one leg, and finally gave the home folks a real thrill when she suspended herself from the bottom of the ship with her teeth.

AIRPLANE RIDES
For the promotion of aviation this coupon entitles bearer to airplane ride with the Mathewson fliers for a "penny a pound" what you weigh is what you pay.
The fliers with this group are government licensed.
Ride with them through the courtesy of The Herald.

Ace Rinehart will do several parachute jumps each day. One of the features of the show of Truman Miller, a veteran aviator with over 200 hours in the air. Truman for 70 of these hours was a mail pilot over the extremely difficult route Cheyenne, Wyo., to Rawlins, Wyo., over the mountains. Miller says you keep climbing and climbing and some times when you think you are over the mountains you are just beginning to start up hill.

The fliers furnish thrill after thrill but their main object is to fly Pickaway-co people that flying is safe.

Passengers are being taken up in the plane for "a penny a pound" provided they have the coupon from the Herald which is being run daily. Otherwise the cost is two and one-half cent a pound. The fliers are located in a field just out of town on route 188.

15 Locomotives Starting With 1680 Model on Exhibit At Pumpkin Show

Ernest Warther Has Refused Offers To Sell For $50,000—Works at Home.

Ernest Warther, Dover, O., who occupies a space for the Pumpkin show directly in front of The Herald office, has one of the most unique displays ever shown at a fair of any kind.

Warther has with a penknife carved 15 locomotives starting with the first steam engine in 1680 and continuing until the Pacific type locomotive of 1922.

The models are made from ivory, ebony, black walnut, pearl and bone, and are mechanically perfect. Some idea of the intricacy involved in the work may be secured by the bell cords on the models. These are not bent, as ivory cannot be bent, but are cut to the curve after using a shellac covered thread as a template.

The ivory used in these models came from elephant and walrus tusks and also billiard balls. The frames of the models are made of apple woods inlaid with mother of pearl. The bolts and rivets are made of bone, and there is real ebony in the wheels, cylinders and tender frames.

The larger of the engines has 7,597 pieces including the base.

The collection which has conservatively been valued at $150,000 and which has been displayed throughout the country includes the George Stephenson locomotive which pulled the first passenger train in the world; the DeWitt Clinton locomotive, the first on the New York Central and the Empire State Express No. 999 which pulled the world's fastest

Turney Phillips, Circleville, John Freishne, Lancaster and Shirley Brown, Ringgold were released from the Hocking-co jail late Tuesday when Prosecuting Attorney Philip A. AUSTIN TALKS TO SENATORS

Lobby Investigation Changes to Sugar, and Money Spent For Duties.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—(INS.)—The Senate's lobby investigation turned toward sugar today.

Following rumors that huge sums of money have been spent pro and con in the lobby warfare over sugar duties, the senate committee summoned spokesmen for the United States Beet Sugar company and a representative of American growers, was to be the opening witness. He will be followed by H. C. Lakin, president of the Cuba Company, who can speak for the Cuban growers. These two groups have battled for many years over sugar tariffs—a warfare that has been waged relentlessly during consideration of the pending tariff bill.

The American growers won in the house, where a basic Cuban rate of $2.40 per hundred pounds was approved. Then the senate finance committee reduced this rate to $2.20 per hundred pounds. The Cuban growers meanwhile have fought for retention of the existing $1.76 rate, which may yet be approved by the senate. Both sides incidentally flooded congress with propaganda favoring their particular causes.

"We wish to find out how much money was raised for this propaganda and lobbying activity," observed Senator Walsh (D) of Montana, member of the committee. "We want to know where it came from and how it was spent. That large sums were spent is indicated by the amount of publicity given to this subject."

Science Divided as to Age of Meteor Crater That is One of the Wonders of Arizona Desert

One of the most unusual sights in northern Arizona is the "Shell Hole" or meteor crater that is situated near the town of Winslow. This immense hole in the ground which was evidently made by the falling of a meteor thousands of years ago is four thousand feet across at the pit of the crater and 600 feet deep. In a mine shaft that has been sunk by scientists to get at the body of the meteor lies under tons of sand the conglomerate mass that is believed to be the meteor itself. Inset is Joe Miller, a Navajo Indian guide with a piece of the meteor which he found at the bottom of the mine shaft. The town of Winslow has profited to a great extent by the presence of the crater, as it lies near the great Mogollon Plateau, which is one of the most beautiful sights in Arizona and attracts thousands of tourists every year.

More and More Colds Treated Externally

Growing Demand for Vicks VapoRub Compels Another Increase in Famous Slogan

A generation ago, when Vicks VapoRub was originated, the idea of treating colds without "dosing" was almost unheard of. Today more and more colds are treated externally, and the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing".

As a result, the demand for Vicks has increased so rapidly that it is again necessary to change its familiar slogan. First announced when Vicks reached "17 Million Jars Used Yearly," this famous slogan was raised to "21 Million" a short time ago. Once more the figure has been outgrown, as there are now "Over 26 Million Jars Used Yearly" in the United States alone.

Mothers of young children especially appreciate Vicks, because there's nothing to swallow and, of course, nothing to upset delicate stomachs, as "dosing" is so apt to do. Just rubbed on, this modern vaporizing ointment acts through the skin like a poultice or plaster, and at the same time it gives off medicated vapors which are inhaled and reach the inflamed air passages.

Year after year the popular Vicks has spread all over the world until it is now the family staple for all colds—adults' as well as children's.

WALSH SAYS A'S HURLING WON SERIES

Says Macks Could Have Beaten Cubs Over 21-Game
Stretch If Needed.

By DAVIS J WALSH

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Nobody was demanding a recount on the world series today but it was noteworthy that some of our more enlightened men were engaged in hinting that, while a good club won the world's championship, it may have been that a better club lost it. Their idea was that, although the Cubs lost to the Athletics at the seven-game distance, they probably would have won in a series of 21 games. This is a sterling thought and it is too bad that life in general cannot be conducted on this basis. By following its reasoning, nobody would ever lose.

The fact of the matter is that the 1929 world series was decided, as usual, by pitching and the breaks and the Philadelphia Athletics won because they got both of them. And just to be vulgarly practical about it, I cannot seem to lose sight of the notion that a team with the better pitching would hardly be at a disadvantage in a 21-game series not to mention the fact that in winning four of the first five games it would be off to a sprightly start over any route that might be named.

I could prove, at least to my own satisfaction, that the Athletics were the better ball club merely by calling attention to the pitching of Grove, Earnshaw, Ehmke and Welberg as against that of Root, Malone and Bush. But this is unnecessary. Fate always is on the side of the heavier artillery and fate it is who wins these world series, even before they are played.

Men spend sleepless night, worrying about what they will do on the ball field, and then go out and add years to their lives trying to do it. They forget that fate, having bade his choice of the winner, won't be denied by anything they may or may not do about it.

It was fate, for instance, that Cubs scored so many runs in the sixth inning of the fourth game on Saturday, thus prolonging the inning to a point where the sun was brought into a position to dazzle Wilson and make him lose the drives of Miller and Haas. Thus, by scoring less runs, the Cubs probably would have won the ball game. It is not necessary, of course, to point to the freak bound that Simmons' grounder took in eluding McMillan. This was an obvious decree of fate.

What of Fox's home run that really won the first game, since it got Root out of the box? This smash, deserving though it was of all the luck it could get, barely caught the far corner of the centerfield stand. A foot or so to the right and it wouldn't have been a home run at all. And what of Bishop's hit in the ninth inning of the final game? He swung late with the result that the ball cut inside third base by inches. Without Bishop on base Haas' home run might have been just a home run, although personally I doubt this.

They call these things breaks and either rejoice or complain bitterly about them, according to the way they go. But I notice the breaks usually go to the better ball team. There is no doubt in my mind that they did so this time.

DEAR FOOTBALL ENTHUSIAST
In reply to your letter in Monday's issue of The Herald, we will endeavor, if possible, to show you the reason for not giving more yells at the Clarksburg game.

The first reason was that our rooters were scattered, which is usually the case. This caused a complete flunk of the two yells which were given.

The second reason is and always will be that the supposed to be rooters are knackers such as yourself who stood on the sidelines criticizing and finding fault.

If you think you can lead cheers better than we, you are perfectly welcome at any time to try your skill.

Do you think this is fair play to all, we do not.

Cheer Leaders.

VARSITY WORK AGAINST FROSH SCORES THRICE

Willaman Keeps First String Backs On Sidelines During Lengthy Session.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 16.—(INS.)—The Ohio State University gridgers stomped through a freshman eleven yesterday afternoon and made three touchdowns during a 30-minute practice session.

Coach Willaman took no chances of having his backfield stars injured. Holman, McConnell and Horn were kept out of the scrimmage. Hinchman, former local high school flash, led the freshmen from the quarterback berth, in a brilliant manner.

The regulars showed a lack of scoring punch during the first few minutes but they woke up after being pounded by the freshmen and scored three touchdowns. Willaman was visibly heartened and he pointed out that the varsity gained more ground yesterday than it did in any practice session this year.

A squad of 40 frosh all saw service in the half hour scuffle.

Meanwhile the other freshmen recruits were being given a workout in their own training field.

Oscar Ashe, freshman end, had his collar bone broken in a scrimmage between two freshmen teams. When taken to University hospital he remarked: "I'm glad it wasn't Fessler."

Exposed Cult Activities

C. R. Dabney, who, according to Mrs. Otis Blackburn, now under arrest in Los Angeles, Cal., is the man who brought about the exposure of the religious cult now being pursued by the California police. Mrs. Blackburn is responsible for the story that Dabney "peached" on the cult because the members refused to let him assume the role of "Christ," whereupon he went to the authorities with evidence that led to the discovery of the body of Willa Rhodes, buried beneath the floor of her home.

HEILMANN SOLD TO CINCINNATI REDS

No Price Named, and No Players Involved In Detroit Player Deal.

DETROIT, Oct. 16.—(INS.)—Harry Heilmann, for many years star hitter for the Tigers, has been sold to the Cincinnati Reds. The Reds paid cash for him and no other players are involved in the deal.

Before Harry could be sold out of the league it was necessary to obtain waivers from all other American league clubs.

The bureau of ethnology says it frequently has inquiries regarding buried treasures. These buried treasures are reported as marked either by stones arranged in rows or some other natural objects or by markings on rocks. On investigation it is generally found there is nothing in them of any value. The Indian never acquired the conception of either individual or tribal wealth and did not have treasure.

Science Divided as to Age of Meteor Crater That is One of the Wonders of Arizona Desert

One of the most unusual sights in northern Arizona is the "Shell Hole" or meteor crater that is situated near the town of Winslow. This immense hole in the ground which was evidently made by the falling of a meteor thousands of years ago is four thousand feet across at the pit of the crater and 600 feet deep. In a mine shaft that has been sunk by scientists to get at the body of the meteor lies under tons of sand the conglomerate mass that is believed to be the meteor itself. Inset is Joe Miller, a Navajoe Indian guide with a piece of the meteor which he found at the bottom of the mine shaft. The town of Winslow has profited to a great extent by the presence of the crater, as it lies near the great Mogollon Plateau, which is one of the most beautiful sights in Arizona and attracts thousands of tourists every year.

More and More Colds Treated Externally

Growing Demand for Vicks VapoRub
Compels Another Increase in Famous Slogan

A generation ago, when Vicks VapoRub was originated, the idea of treating colds without "dosing" was almost unheard of. Today more and more colds are treated externally, and the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing".
As a result, the demand for Vicks has increased so rapidly that it is again necessary to change its familiar slogan. First announced when Vicks reached "17 Million Jars Used Yearly," this famous slogan was raised to "21 Million" a short time ago. Once more the figure has been outgrown, as there are now "Over 26 Million Jars Used Yearly" in the United States alone.

Mothers of young children especially appreciate Vicks, because there's nothing to swallow and, of course, nothing to upset delicate stomachs, as "dosing" is so apt to do. Just rubbed on, this modern vaporizing ointment acts through the skin like a poultice or plaster, and at the same time it gives off medicated vapors which are inhaled direct to the inflamed air passage.
Year after year the popular
Vicks has spread all over the world until it is now the family standard for all colds—adults as well as children's—colds.

LETTERS TO EDITOR

Editor, The Circleville Herald:
"I have this so-called Classification Tax Amendment in my system and must write it out."
"The proposed amendment of Sec. 2, Article 12, starts with: No property, taxed according to value, shall be so taxed in excess of one and one-half per cent of its true value in money for all state and local purposes. Then a little farther along it says: Land and improvements thereon shall be taxed by uniform rule according to value."
"Here lies the damnable trick. If it is not a supposed covered trick, why does it not say, Land and improvements to be taxed according to its true value in money?"
"I know from experience that a just classification of all property to be taxed is more satisfactory than the Uniform Rule. But, include land and improvements in the classification."
"For eight years I paid taxes on real estate and personal property in a state that has classification of all property at its true value in money. The classification ran thus: Land and Improvements, Farm Stock, Public Utilities, etc., 33 1/3%; Finished Products, Merchandise of all kinds, Jewelry, etc., 40%; Store, Office and Factory Fixtures, Household Goods, Farm Machinery, etc., 30%; all others true value in money."
"The proponents of the amendment tell us it has worked very satisfactorily in states that are trying it. But they dare not go into the details of the classification in those satisfied states; ask one of them to show the classification of Montana or Kentucky."
"It is an insult to ignorance, to say that unseemly personal property and intangible, that has been dodging taxes will show up even if listed at one per cent of its true value in money, the proponents know this. They also know that visible personal wealth and the intangible wealth of this state is growing by leaps and bounds and that is where classification will help out if Land and Improvements is not included in the classification."
"The 15 mill limit on Land and Improvement VALUE is a bait on a very dangerous hook for the home owner, renters and tenants. Let's see. If the amendment carries, the next state legislature will classify all personal property and all intangible property. Who will be in the majority in that legislature. Representatives of invisible wealth or representatives of visible wealth. The farm, the home and the small personal property owner will have very few representatives. We cannot find fault with the Farm Bureau leaders, the Grange leaders, Senator Fess, Senator Burton, and others, because their possessions are not mostly in land and improvements. They are trying to take care of their own interests. It is their trying to deceive that hurts."
"The Legislature will classify

ILLNESS OF FIVE YEARS BANISHED BY NEW KONJOLA

Complications Made His Life Miserable: Declares New Medicine Only Thing That Helped Him.

MR. E. H. GALYON.
"More words can never express my gratitude for Konjola," said Mr. E. H. Galyon, 1271 Shaffer Street, Dayton, Ohio. "For five years I suffered from stomach trouble. Everything I ate caused an acid condition, gas and bloating. My liver was torpid and I was subject to bilious attacks and dizzy spells. My system was filled with poisons, and I was run-down in general."
"But since taking Konjola I have regained my health. Two bottles showed me that I was on the right track. The third bottle began to eliminate my illness. A short time later I was free of stomach and liver trouble. I eat three hearty meals a day without suffering afterward. All biliousness and dizzy spells have been swept away. I have gained weight, eight pounds, and owe all this new and glorious health to Konjola—the master medicine."
Konjola is sold in Circleville at Hamilton & Ryan's drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

all personal property. What kind of personal property will get the lowest per cent in the class, and what kind the highest. Dear reader, you can guess.
"The state tax commission can change the land value at any time. The next Legislature can and may give that Commission the authority to change the land and improvements value of any village, city or township unit at any time."
"Remember, dear reader, that Land and Improvements value and the true value of Land and Improvements in money is two distinct different values. And remember, a slump in the taxable value of personal property means a raise in the Land and Improvements value or a raise in the rate of taxation. Since 15 mills is to be the limit it means a raise in the home value."
"At the present time many, if not all, the homes and farms in Pickaway-co have a taxable value far in excess of their true value in money, or at least those that are being sold."
"Verify this fact. I purchased this 65 acre farm on May 28, 1928 for $2,480. Its taxable value is $4,160; $3,560 for the land and $600 for improvements."
"Should my Land and Improvements value be raised so to help large personal property and intangible property owners get a taxable value on their property for less than 100% its true value in money."
"The proponents of this proposed injustice ask us to furnish something better than the present system. I say leave bad enough alone, instead of taking worse.

"I, knowing for many years the injustice that is being practiced under the present system and I also realize that any system of taxation on property will work against the small taxpayer for more than his share. I have for some time been in favor of abolishing all property taxes, and adopting a sales tax. I think it is the only fair and satisfactory remedy."
"Taxation has always been a controversy, and will be so long as imposed on thrift, industry, and the honor and honesty or dishonesty of man. Tax the spender, mostly unseen and does not hurt. I realize how very unpopular this idea is at present, but it will be popular before this taxation question is settled for good and all time."
"There is not a man or woman in Pickaway-co that will receive any net benefit, not even the incunabula like this will receive any net benefit by this amendment. But the large banks of the cities will. Which will give them another boost to draw more deposits out of the rural communities. This is more of an important election to the voters of Pickaway-co, the Land Owners, Home Owners, Renters and Tenants of the State.

STRONG AS EVER

Few men and fewer women begin life without the ambition to own a home of their own. A place which in mind at least is to be almost sacred. A castle protected by the law of the land safe from intrusion. Where the family is to be reared; to be adorned and beautified during the vigorous years of life and then truly a haven of refuge in the declining year.

Men and women are the same today as yesterday. Instincts are the same. Inherent qualities are not controlled by changed conditions. Modern life may suggest subterfuges for a home, may make the realization of the desire for a home difficult, but though the subterfuge triumph and the desire fail, the instinct though stifled is as strong as ever.

There are those who regret that the modern idea suggests placing the home secondary in importance in life. Why a castle when theaters, dances, card parties and amusements in public places must be attended every night in the week? Too many consider the home with family prayers, family gatherings and a place which is considered habitable several evenings during the week, one which is presided over by some old fogey. The pendulum has swung forward and will swing back. There will come the time when the home owning loving instinct will prevail and the home be reinstated.

Not Encouraging

The motorcyclist was on unfamiliar ground, and directly before him was a fork in the road, with no signpost to tell him which way to go.

"Which way to Stumpville?" he asked a dejected looking man who was leaning against a fence.

The man waved his hand towards the left.

"Thanks," said the motorcyclist. "How far is it?"

"Taint far," was the drawling reply. "When you get there you wish it was a darn sight farther."

Women and Age

There is a tradition that women are loath to tell their ages; and it is a tradition that this reluctance is because they fear to confess the departure of youth. Perhaps its origin lay otherwise; that they knew that a woman, or a man, is what she or he is, looks, acts, knows, does, believes, and that enumeration of years may be less truthful than that which appears to the eye and understanding.—Exchange.

"FICTION"

Blue Blood And Red

by ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

EDDIE REGAN, once a member of a New York gang, has broken away and gone to Virginia, where he befriends Penfield Paradine, who dies and leaves all his possessions to Eddie. Eddie had been in love with Bernice Veressi, "gang girl," but all thought of her is lost when he meets and falls in love with Marian Thorndike. Marian is engaged to Tom Freeman. Freeman and Eddie dislike each other and Eddie, discouraged, goes to Richmond, where he meets Mike Arno, a former member of the gang, who tries to persuade him to return to New York and Bernice. Eddie, however, returns to his farm and telephones Marian, asking her if he may call. Freeman overhears the conversation and a fight ensues, in which Eddie knocks Freeman out and takes him to Marian's home. Freeman is revived and tells Eddie he wants to be friends and they shake hands on the bargain. Marian's father objects to Eddie as a suitor for Marian, but Marian overrules his objections and Eddie is invited to their home for dinner.

Now Go On with the Story

CHAPTER XXXV.

THE beginning of the dinner, shortly after his arrival at the Thorndike home, made him acutely conscious of his lack of social experience. In truth, the meal and the table service were simple. What did give the event distinction was the quiet air of good breeding that was so utterly unlike the roistering table manners of his old companions. Too, he did not know whether Marian's parents expected him to be bright and entertaining, or whether he should say as little as possible. But Marian, sitting beside him, managed to keep him at ease as best she could.

From the first she sensed his uncertainty. There were several topics available, however, and she asked him how he was getting along with his timber cutting. On this subject he could talk agreeably; and without any self-consciousness, he spoke of the lore of the woods, of tools, axes, saws, wedges, and, in general the undependability of negro labor.

When the meal was finished Marian and her mother disappeared and Eddie faced the necessity of going into the library and smoking a cigar with the elderly gentleman who, despite his hospitality, seemed charged with a hidden antagonism.

The winning of Marian—as far as the girl herself was concerned—was the longest of shots. Eddie might hope, he might dream—even in the secrecy of dark night hours he might, conceivably, pray—but it was like wishing for the moon. A radiant smile descended and covered him with glamorous light, but the moon was still beyond his reach.

Two men had opposed him. One, a rival, had possessed every natural advantage, but had gone down, knocked out. Without vanity, Eddie realized he had little more to fear from Tom Freeman. The second man was Marian's father. To get past Mr. Thorndike would be infinitely more difficult.

They lit cigars—Eddie would have preferred a cigarette—and sat down comfortably. Eddie looked carefully at the older man, seeking some physical evidence of kinship to Marian. But the girl, he decided, was more her mother's daughter—only in something about the eyes did Marian resemble her father. Yet, mentally, daughter and father shared, obscurely, a forthright mentality. Mr. Thorndike's face was of the intellectual type and slightly cold.

"I've wanted to have a talk with you, Mr. Regan," he said, quietly.

Movement Imperative

I find the great thing in this world is not so much where we stand, as in what direction we are moving. To reach the port of heaven, we must sail sometimes with the wind, and sometimes against it; but we must sail, and not drift, nor lie at anchor.—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

The Pastor Says:

Many women do not drive cars, but all give lessons in driving. . . . Preparation for death often means that when Father Time has his sickle in a harvest of wild oats, they may be transformed into good grain by pronouncing an incantation over them.—John Andrew Holmes.

German First in Field

Electricity was first used for lighting railway carriages by the London, Brighton and South Coast railway in 1881. A system employing a belt-driven dynamo on one of the carriages for supplying current to Geissler tubes throughout the train had, however, been patented in Germany in 1879.

Automobile racing meant extra work for the motor builders when Ernest Torrence essayed it. Torrence, who plays the race champion in William Haines' new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer starring vehicles "Speedway," a sound synchroized production, coming to the Cliftona theatre, is so large that a special car had to be designed to give him proper leg room in the race Harry Beaumont directed the new production. Much of which was filmed at the Indianapolis races.

Anita Page plays an aviatrix and Haines an auto racing driver in the new picture, which was filmed during the Indianapolis races, which were a background for the action. Karl Dane, Ernest Torrence, John Miljan and others of note appear in the picture. Harry Beaumont directed the first picture he has made since the sensational success of "Broadway Melody."

AT THE MET—

The boy who broke into the movies by making Cecil M. DeMille laugh during the making of "The Godless Girl," comes into his own in "The Sophomore," a Pathe dialogue picture, which is at the Met theatre.

He is Eddie Quillan, youthful Pathe comedian, whose meteoric rise from the comparative obscurity of a screen star has been accomplished in less than two years. In this production Eddie is given his biggest chance, playing a wisecracking college boy with an overgrown sense of humor, which constantly gets him into trouble.

He loses his tuition fee shooting craps and someone unknown to him pays his fee to the faculty. This results in some amusing and highly dramatic developments.

Colorful and picturesque to a high degree, the photoplay is laid in that period of our history when what is now known as "the old West" was being reclaimed from the wilderness by pioneers and government agencies that pushed civilization along the overland trail which later became the first railroad line. Tom is seen in the role of a pony express rider—one of that intrepid band who carried the mails on horseback through dangerous country infested with hostile Indians and outlaws.

I find the only thing in this world is not so much where it stands, as in what direction we are moving. To be a part of heaven we must sail sometimes with the wind, and sometimes against it; but we must sail, and not drift, nor lie at anchor.—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

The Pastor Says:

on. "But I want, also, to be fair if the doors of this house are to be open to you—and they have been opened—I want to know something about you. I want to know who you are and where you came from, for the one thing."

This was not a blow—it was the cold, swift thrust of a sword. Eddie winced inwardly, but he managed to conceal the pang. To cringe was impossible.

"I'm nobody, and I came from no place," he said, steadily. "Without going into details, Mr. Thorndike, I think that answers your question."

The other looked at him with unwavering eye. "It does, perfectly. Also, your answer has the merit of great honesty. Another thing I want to know—again without details, if you prefer—is there anything about you, or in your record, that would make any friendship between you and Marian impossible if it were known? Do you understand what I mean?"

Eddie's mind was now on edge with alertness. Was there, indeed, any stain on his life that barred him from a girl like Marian Thorndike? Looking back, he envisaged his spotted past. He tried to be honest. There were black marks that burned him with an inward shame. He had lived the life of his environment—but he had, he hoped, escaped in time without indelible stigma. The saving fact was that he had confessed his past to Marian—the one person most truly concerned—and she had given him absolution.

"No man," he said seriously, "is fit for a girl like your daughter, Mr. Thorndike. That's a general statement—but I'm not trying to put anything over on her. If I felt that there was anything about me that would degrade her I'd go away and never see her again. You can believe that or not—but my word of honor goes with it."

Mr. Thorndike was silent for a space of minutes. Finally, he said: "I suppose I'll have to be satisfied with that. I wouldn't have talked to you in this way if her happiness were not so tremendously vital to her mother and to me. I want you to know that the most precious object on earth to us is Marian, and that I would go to any length to insure her against catastrophe in the form of the empty threat."

Mr. Regan, you have given me, I suppose, what ever assurances were possible. I'm going to let you come here occasionally—I'm going to accept you for what you seem to be and at face value; at the same time I'm going to give you a warning."

Here he paused. Then— "If by the slightest token you betray in any way the trust that is imposed upon you, I will settle with you myself in such a manner that you will never again blight any girl's life. And now, sir, let's make this the end of such conversation between us."

Eddie spent the balance of the evening alone with Marian, but a restraint was upon him. He could not rid his mind of the self-gloved menace of her father. It was not a matter he could discuss with her—he couldn't tell her that he had been put, virtually, upon parole.

LETTERS TO EDITOR

Editor, The Circleville Herald:

"I have this so-called Classification Tax Amendment in my system and must write it out.

"The proposed amendment of Sec. 2, Article 12, starts with: No property, taxed according to value, shall be so taxed in excess of one and one-half per cent of its true value in money for all state and local purposes: Then a little farther along it says: Land and improvements thereon shall be taxed by uniform rule according to value.

"Here lies the damnable trick. If it is not a supposed covered trick; why does it not say, Land and improvements to be taxed according to its true value in money?

"I know from experience that a just taxation of all property to be taxed is more satisfactory than the Uniform Rule. But, include land and improvements in the classification.

"For eight years I paid taxes on real estate and personal property in a state that has classification of all property at its true value in money. The classification ran thus: Land and Improvements, Farm Stock, Public Utilities, etc., 33 1-3%; Finished Products, Merchandise of all kinds, Jewelry, etc., 40%; Store, Office and Factory Fixtures, Household Goods, Farm Machinery, etc., 30%; all others true value in money.

"The proponents of the amendment tell us it has worked very satisfactorily in states that are trying it. But they dare not go into the details of the classification in those satisfied states; ask one of them to show the classification of Montana or Kentucky.

"It is an insult to ignorance, to say that unseen personal property and intangible, that has been dodging taxes will show up even if listed at one per cent of its true value in money, the proponents know this. They also know that visible personal wealth and the intangible wealth of this state is growing by leaps and bounds, and that is where classification will help out if Land and Improvements is not included in the classification.

"The 15 mill limit on Land and Improvement VALUE is a bait on a very dangerous hook for the home owner, renters and tenants. Let's see, if the amendment carries, the next state legislature will classify all personal property and all intangible property. Who will be in the majority in that legislature. Representatives of invisible wealth, or representatives of visible wealth. The farm, the home and the small personal property owner will have very few representatives. We cannot find fault with the Farm Bureau leaders, the Grange leaders, Senator Fess, Senator Burton, and others, because their possessions are not mostly in land and improvements. They are trying to take care of their own interests. It is their trying to deceive that hurts.

"The Legislature will classify

all personal property. What kind of personal property will get the lowest per cent in the classify, and what kind the highest. Dear reader, you can guess.

"The state tax commission can change the land value at any time. The next Legislature can and may give that Commission the authority to change the land and improvements value of any village, city or township unit at any time.

"Remember, dear reader, that Land and Improvements value and the true value of Land and Improvements in money is two distinct different values. And remember a slump in the taxable value of personal property means a raise in the Land and Improvements value or a raise in the rate of taxation. Since 15 mills is to be the limit it means a raise in the home value.

"At the present time many, if not all, the homes and farms in Pickaway-co have a taxable value far in excess of their true value in money, or at least those that are being sold.

"Verify this fact. I purchased this 65 acre farm on May 28, 1928, for $2,480. Its taxable value is $4,160; $3,560 for the land and $600 for improvements.

"Should my Land and Improvements value be raised, so to help large personal property and intangible property owners get a taxable value on their property for less than 100% its true value in money.

"The proponents of this proposed injustice ask us to furnish something better than the present system. I say leave bad enough alone, instead of taking worse.

"I, knowing for many years the injustice that is being practiced under the present system and I also realize that any system of taxation on property will work against the small taxpayer for more than his share, I have for some time been in favor of abolishing all property taxes, and adopting a sales tax. I think it is the only fair and satisfactory remedy.

"Taxation has always been a controversy, and will be so long as imposed on thrift, industry, and the honor and honesty or dishonesty of man. Tax the spender, mostly unseen and does not hurt. I realize how very unpopular this idea is at present, but it will be popular before this taxation question is settled for good and all time.

"There is not a man or woman in Pickaway-co that will receive any net benefit, not even the incunates like this will receive any net benefit by this amendment. But the large banks of the cities will. Which will give them another boost to draw more deposits out of the rural communities. This is more of an important election to the voters of Pickaway-co, the Land Owners, Home Owners, Renters and Tenants of the State.

than who is president of the U. S., or who is Governor of Ohio."

ILLNESS OF FIVE YEARS BANISHED BY NEW KONJOLA

Complications Made His Life Miserable; Declares New Medicine Only Thing That Helped Him.

MR. B. H. GALYON.

"Mere words can never express my gratitude for Konjola," said Mr. B. H. Galyon, 1271 Shaefer Street, Dayton, Ohio. "For five years I suffered from stomach trouble. Everything I ate caused an acid condition, gas and bloating. My liver was torpid and I was subject to bilious attacks and dizzy spells. My system was filled with poisons and I was run-down in general."

"But since taking Konjola I have regained my health. Two bottles showed me that I was on the right track. The third bottle began to eliminate my illness. A short time later I was free of stomach and liver trouble. I eat three hearty meals a day without suffering afterward. All biliousness and dizzy spells have been swept away. I have gained weight, eight pounds, and owe all this new and glorious health to Konjola—the master medicine."

Konjola is sold in Circleville at Hamilton & Ryan's drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

Children Confess to Ghastly Crime

John Mulligan, eight, left, with his brother, James, seven, and Detective Sergeant Henry J. Gallbrunner. The two boys, orphans, have confessed to the killing of three-year-old Albert Mikenas at Milford, Ct., last July. It was believed at the time that Mikenas was attacked by some feeble-minded person because of the mutilated condition of the body. Police declare it was the work of a powerful man but they are inclined to accept the Mulligan boys' story.

HEDGES WARNS SCHOOL BOYS

Mayor E. T. Hedges Wednesday warned school boys and any other persons that arrests will follow any escapades which occur during the Pumpkin Show.

Rutland is not only the smallest county in England; it has much the smallest police force. This consists of a chief constable, an inspector, two sergeants and 12 constables, who look after more than 18,000 people.

Children Confess to Ghastly Crime

John Mulligan, eight, left, with his brother, James, seven, and Detective Sergeant Henry J. Gallbrunner. The two boys, orphans, have confessed to the killing of three-year-old Albert Mikenas at Milford, Ct., last July. It was believed at the time that Mikenas was attacked by some feeble-minded person because of the mutilated condition of the body. Police declare it was the work of a powerful man but they are inclined to accept the Mulligan boys' story.

HEDGES WARNS SCHOOL BOYS

Mayor B. T. Hedges Wednesday warned school boys and any other persons that arrests will follow any escapades which occur during the Pumpkin Show.

A snake dance in the uptown streets last night tied up traffic according to Mayor Hedges and many complaints from officials and spectators at Pumpkin Show preliminaries caused the mayor to take this action.

Leadership

The character and qualifications of the leader are reflected in the men he selects, develops and gathers around him. Show me the leader and I will know his men.
